

Talk with more connection

The listening method + the 30-20-10 structure + the five types of boundaries

A simple way to communicate with clarity, listen for real and respect boundaries — yours and everyone else's.

What you get

The listening method, the 30-20-10 storytelling structure and the five types of boundaries.

No fluff

Clear, respectful communication — no manipulation, no emotional games.

Before you start

This guide is educational and meant to help you communicate better — not to teach manipulation or emotional games.

Core principle

Healthy attraction and connection aren't about convincing someone to like you. They're about becoming a more secure, clear and respectful person.

- The other person always has the freedom to say yes, no or maybe — and that must be respected.
- This material does not teach manipulation, pressure, insisting after a "no" or emotional games.
- The golden rule is simple: respect the other person's time, context and response.

The listening method

A simple method to remember the steps of active listening in any important conversation.

Step	Practical application
Observe	Pay attention to tone of voice, posture and expression.
Use silence	Let the person finish speaking without interrupting.
Validate	Acknowledge the feeling before offering an opinion.
Investigate with care	Ask open questions that go deeper without being invasive.

• Guiding phrase

The best communication doesn't force connection; it creates an environment where connection can happen with freedom and respect.

The 30-20-10 structure for telling stories

A short, well-organized story connects more than a long account with no direction.

Part	Time	Function
Context	30s	Set the scene: where, when, with whom.
Turn	20s	The moment something changed or surprised you.
Point	10s	The lesson or final feeling, in one sentence.

In the full guide

The full listening method, the four levels of questions, the conflict-repair method and the 30-day plan are all in the full guide.

The five types of boundaries

Healthy boundaries aren't rejection — they're information about what makes a relationship work well.

Type	What it protects
Time	Your schedule and available energy.
Emotional	Your stability and pace of opening up.
Digital	Your response time and online privacy.

! Rule

A boundary that's met with respect in return is the most reliable sign of a healthy relationship.

Ready for the full guide?

This was just the start. In the full Communication and Relationships guide you get:
the complete listening method, social storytelling, humor and lightness, digital messages and invitations, the five types of boundaries, the conflict-repair method, red flags and green flags, and a 30-day plan with a full workbook.

Being transparent: no guide can guarantee how someone else behaves. The focus is on you communicating better and recognizing healthy relationships.

I want the full guide

NEXTLEVEL

Communicate with clarity. Listen with presence. Build relationships with respect.